DURHAM, NH – Vermont Senator Bernie Sanders, Massachusetts Senator Elizabeth Warren, and former Vice President Joe Biden continue to be the top three candidates in the Democratic field in New Hampshire, followed closely by South Bend (IN) Mayor Pete Buttigieg. However, support for Biden has declined since July. Likely Democratic voters see Sanders as the most progressive and most likeable candidate but continue to say Biden has the best chance to win the general election. Andrew Yang, Amy Klobuchar, and Tulsi Gabbard enjoy slightly higher support among NH voters than they did in July. President Trump continues to garner the vast majority of support among likely Republican primary voters despite facing several Republican challengers for the nomination.

These findings are based on the latest CNN 2020 New Hampshire Primary Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. One thousand and two hundred sixty-six (1,266) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed in English by landline and cellular telephone between October 21 and October 27, 2019. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 2.8 percent. Included in the sample were 461 likely 2020 Republican Primary voters (margin of sampling error +/- 4.6 percent) and 574 likely 2020 Democratic Primary voters (margin of sampling error +/- 4.1 percent). Trend points prior to July 2019 reflect results from the Granite State Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center.

2020 Democratic Primary

Just over half of likely Democratic New Hampshire primary voters (57%) say they are still trying to decide whom to support, 21% say they are leaning towards someone, and 23% have definitely decided whom to support. The proportion of voters who are leaning towards someone or have definitely decided (43%) has increased slightly since July (36%) and substantially since February (15%).

Democratic Candidates Favorability

When asked for their overall opinion of 2020 Democratic candidates, two-thirds of likely New Hampshire Democratic primary voters (66%) say they have a favorable opinion of Sanders, 63% have a favorable opinion of Warren, and more than half have a positive opinion of Biden (55%) and Buttigieg (55%). Just under half have a positive opinion of New Jersey Senator Cory Booker (47%) and California Senator Kamala Harris (45%), four in ten (40%) have a favorable opinion of Minnesota Senator Amy Klobuchar, and about one-third have a favorable opinion of entrepreneur Andrew Yang (36%), former Texas Congressman Beto O'Rourke (33%), and businessman Tom Steyer (31%). Approximately one-quarter of likely Democratic primary voters have a positive opinion of Hawaii Congresswoman Tulsi Gabbard (26%) and former Housing and Urban Development Secretary Julian Castro (24%), while less than 20% have a favorable opinion of Colorado Senator Michael Bennet (15%), Montana Governor Steve Bullock (13%), former Maryland Congressman John Delaney (8%), author Marianne Williamson (7%), and former Pennsylvania Congressman Joe Sestak (5%).

Favorability - October 2019

Likely Democratic primary voters aged 18 to 34 and those who attend religious services once or twice a month are more likely than others to have a positive opinion of Sanders. Self-identified Independents, self-described conservatives, and North Country residents are less likely than others to have a positive opinion of him.

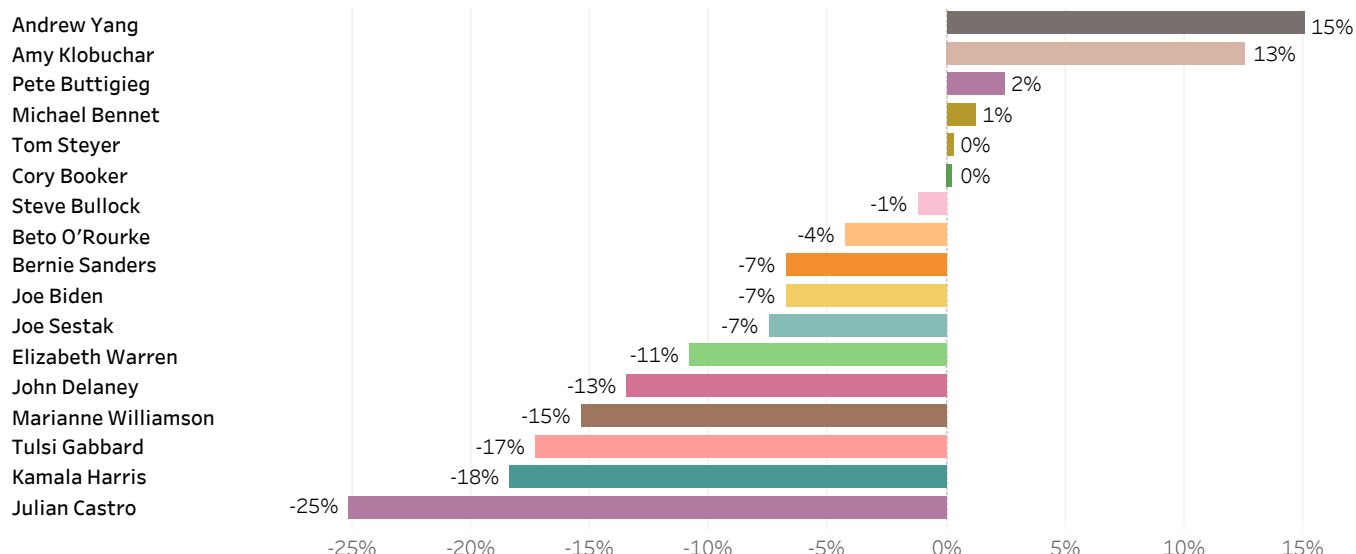

Among likely Democratic primary voters, self-described liberals are more likely than others to have a positive opinion of Warren, while self-described conservatives, self-identified Independents, and gun owners are less likely to have a positive opinion of her.

Likely Democratic primary voters aged 65 and older are more likely than others to have a positive opinion of Biden, while North Country residents, self-described conservatives, and self-identified Independents are less likely to have a positive opinion of him.

Likely Democratic primary voters aged 65 and older, those who have completed postgraduate work, and those who voted for Hillary Clinton in the 2016 general election are more likely than others to have a positive opinion of Buttigieg. Self-described conservatives, those who did not vote in 2016, and those aged 18 to 49 are less likely to have a positive opinion of him.

Compared to July, Yang's net favorability (percentage who view them favorable minus the percentage who view them unfavorably) has increased by 15 percentage points, while Klobuchar's has increased by 13 points. The three leading candidates in New Hampshire, Sanders (-7 points), Warren (-11 points), and Biden (-7 points), have all seen their net favorability decline somewhat since July, while net favorability of Castro (-25 points), Harris (-18%), Gabbard (-17 points), and Williamson (-15 points) have fallen considerably since then.

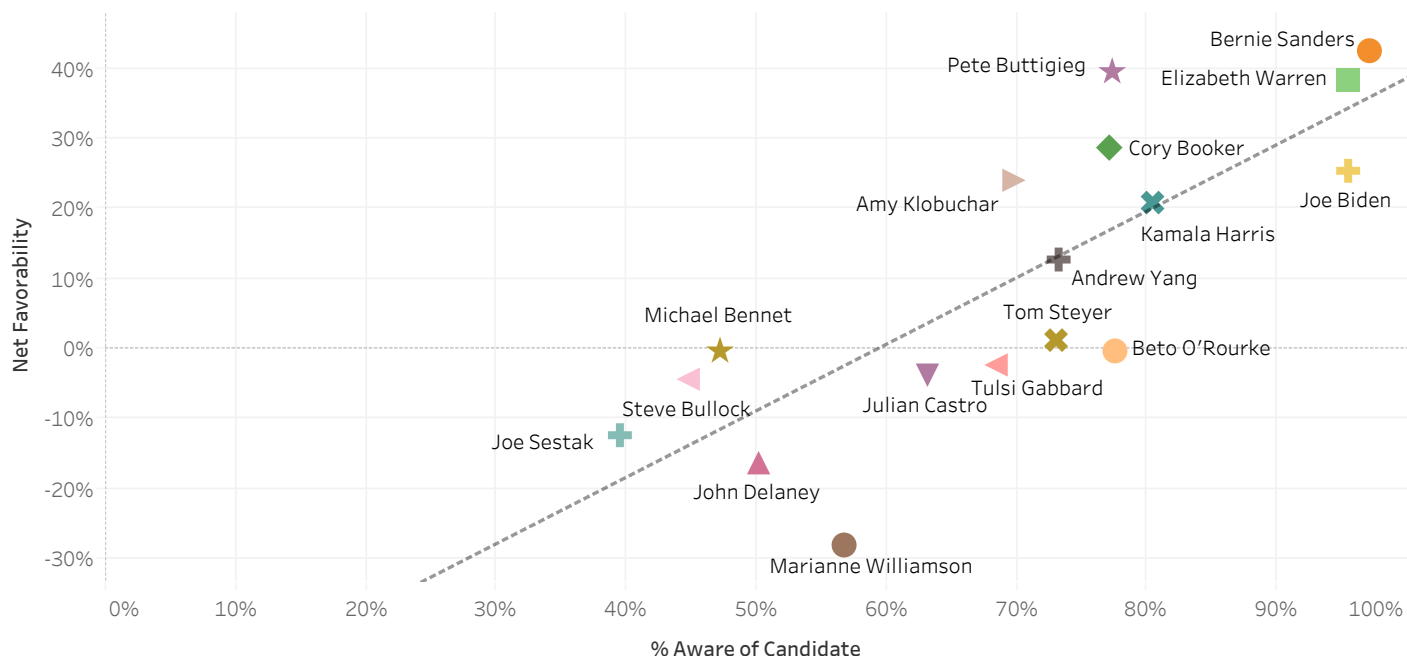

Change in Net Favorability from July to October 2019

Ninety-five percent or more of likely New Hampshire Democratic primary voters are aware of Biden, Sanders and Warren, but Sanders (+43%) and Warren (+38%) have a good deal higher net favorability ratings than Biden (+25%). Buttigieg (+40%) has about the same net favorability as Warren and Sanders but fewer respondents have an opinion of him. Similarly, Booker and Klobuchar are slightly more popular than would be expected based on the proportion of likely voters who are aware of them. Other candidates, such as O'Rourke and Williamson, are less popular than would be expected given the number of likely voters who are aware of them.

"Many Democratic candidates have net favorability ratings near or below zero," said Andrew Smith, Director of the Survey Center. "These candidates will have a very difficult time improving their polling standings."

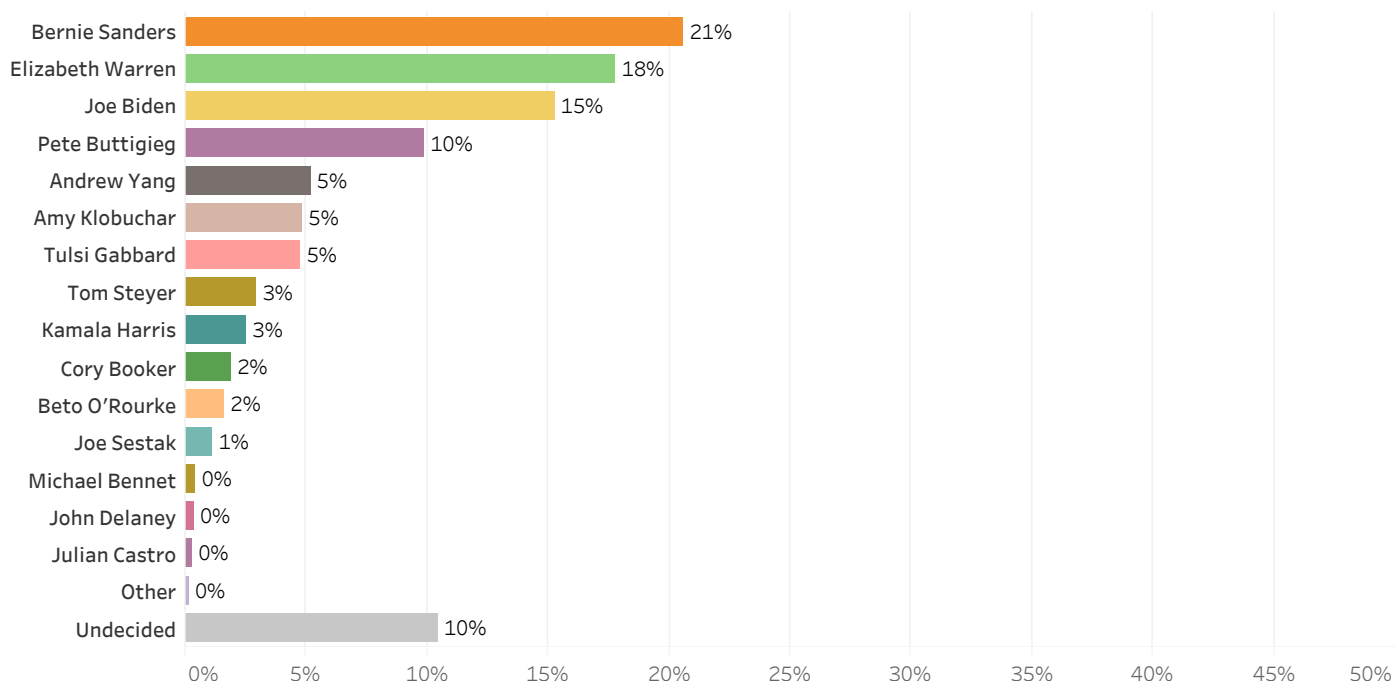

% Aware of Candidate by Net Favorability - October 2019

The dotted line is the line of best fit. Candidates above the dotted line are more popular than would be expected based on the proportion of likely voters who are aware of them, whereas candidates below the dotted line are less popular than would be expected.

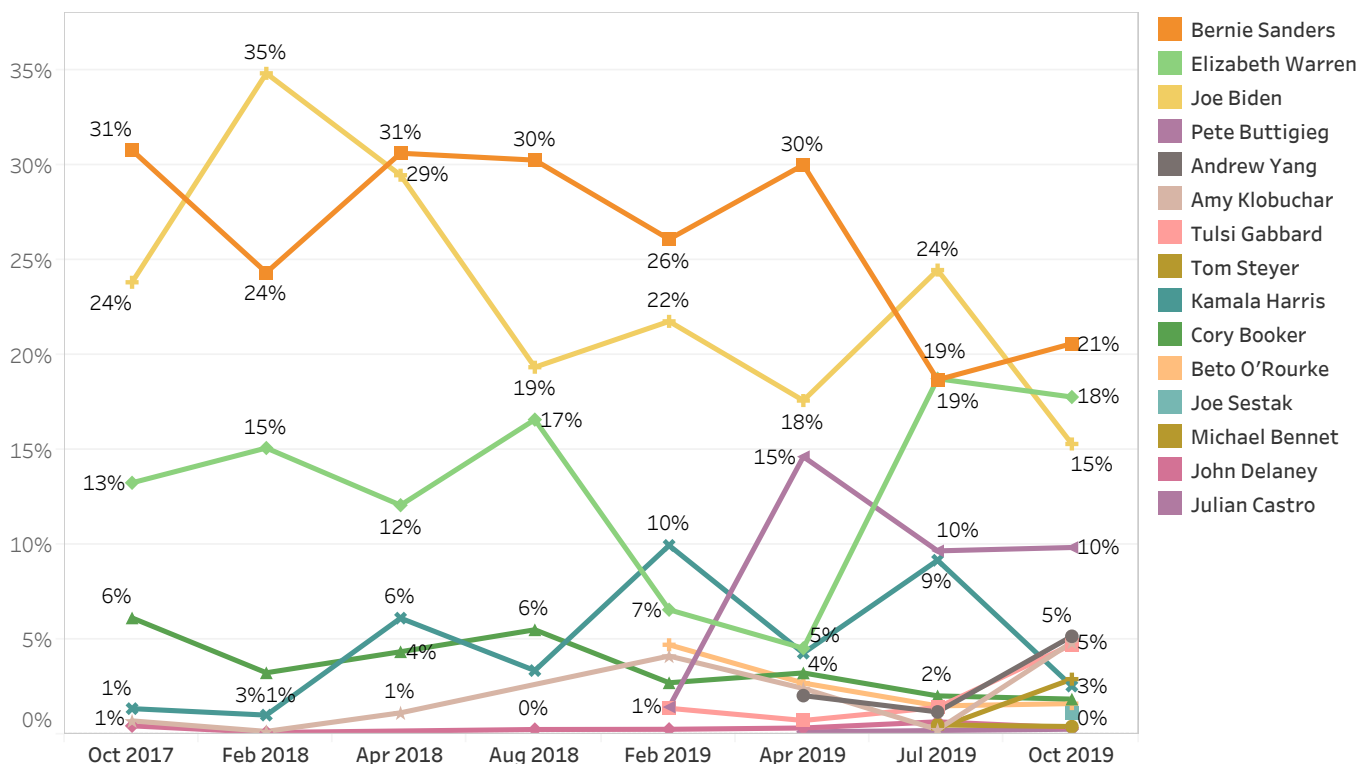

If the 2020 New Hampshire Democratic primary were held today, 21% of likely primary voters say they would vote for Sanders, 18% would vote for Warren, 15% would vote for Biden, and 10% would vote for Buttigieg. Only 5% each say they would vote for Yang, Klobuchar, or Gabbard, 3% each would vote for Steyer or Harris, 2% each would vote for Booker or O'Rourke, 1% would vote for Sestak, and less than 1% each would vote for Bennet, Delaney, or Castro. Less than one percent would support another candidate while 10% are undecided whom they would vote for. Bullock and Williamson were included but did not receive support from any respondent.

Preferred Democratic 2020 Presidential Nomination Candidate - October 2019

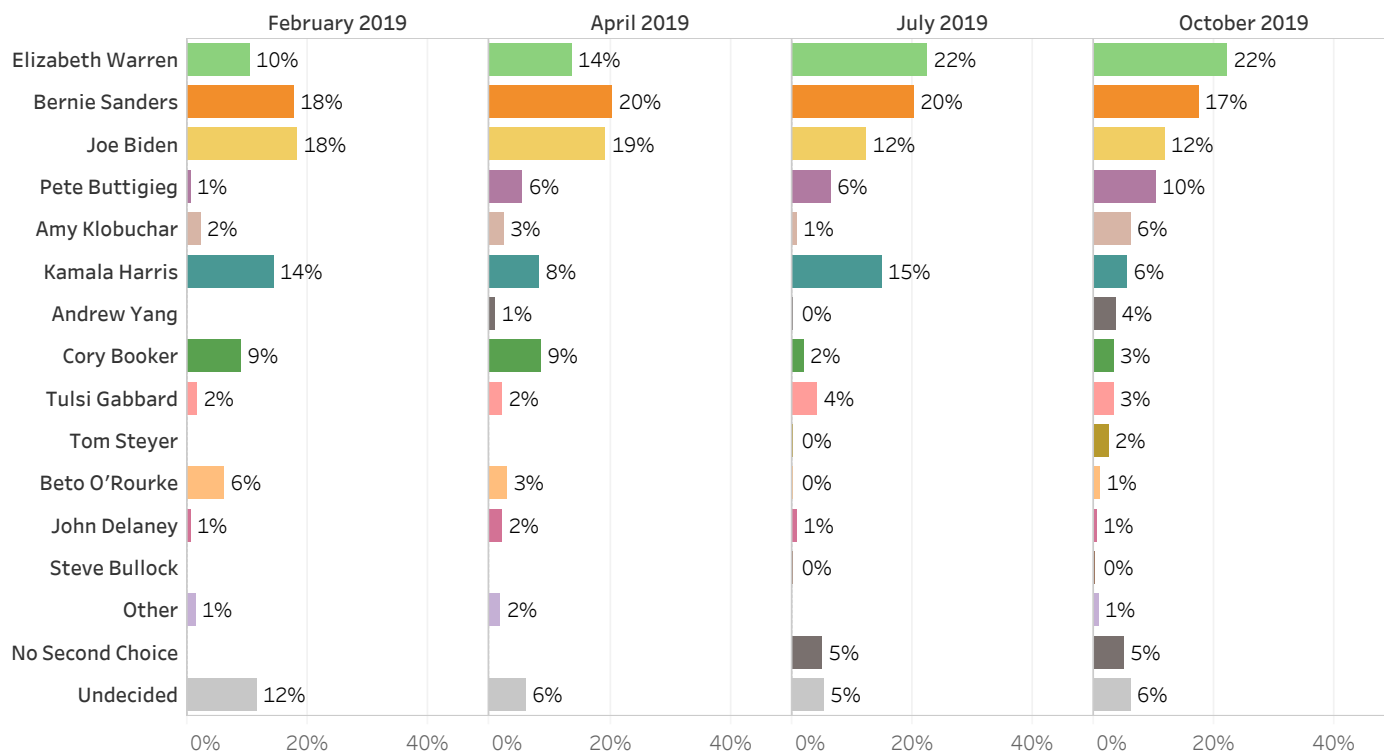

Support for Sanders, Warren, and Buttigieg is unchanged since July, while support for Biden has declined by nine percentage points and is at its lowest point in this primary cycle. Support for Klobuchar, Steyer, and Yang has ticked slightly upward since July.

Preferred Democratic 2020 Presidential Nomination Candidate - October 2017 - October 2019

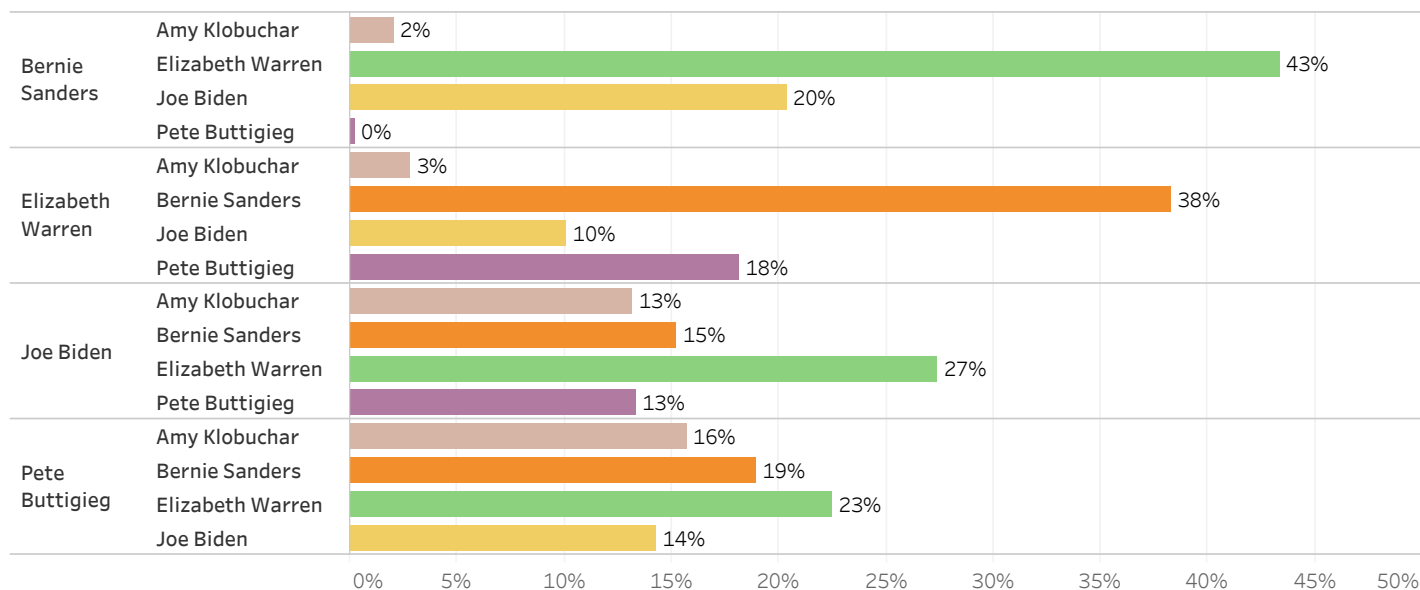

Likely Democratic primary voters provide largely similar responses when asked whom they would support if their preferred candidate were not on the ballot. Twenty-two percent say they would support Warren if their preferred candidate were not on the ballot, 17% would support Sanders, 12% would support Biden, and 10% would support Buttigieg. Six percent each pick Klobuchar or Harris as their second choice, 4% choose Yang, 3% each choose Booker or Gabbard, 2% choose Steyer, 1% each choose O'Rourke or Delaney, less than 1% would support Bullock, and 1% would support another candidate if their first choice candidate were not on the ballot. Five percent say they don't have a second choice while 6% are undecided.

Second Choice for Democratic 2020 Presidential Nomination - February 2019 to October 2019

Among those whose first choice is Sanders, 43% say their second choice is Warren and 38% of those who support Warren as their first choice say Sanders is their second choice. Biden supporters are more divided in their second choice: 27% say Warren is their second choice, 15% would support Sanders, and 13% each would support Buttigieg or Klobuchar. Buttigieg supporters are similarly divided, with 23% saying they would support Warren, 19% would support Sanders, 16% would support Klobuchar, and 14% would support Biden.

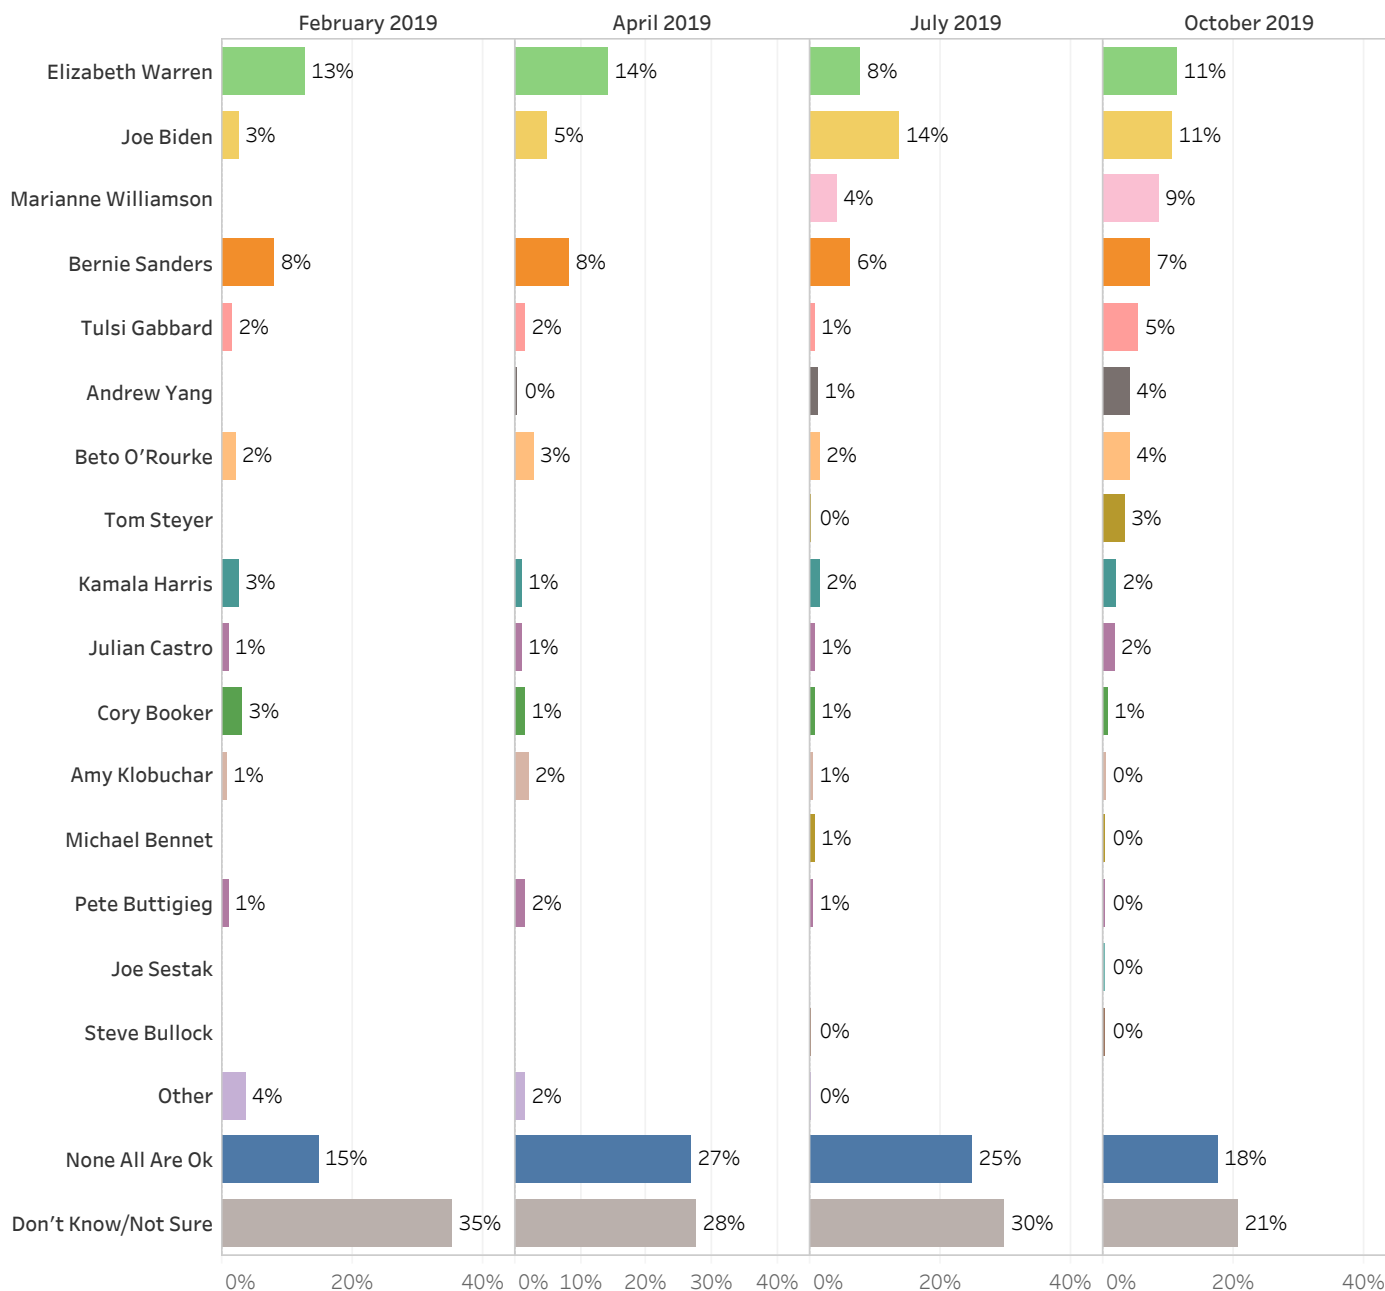

Second Choice for Democratic 2020 Nomination by First Choice - October 2019

When asked which candidate they would not support under any circumstances, three in eight likely Democratic voters (38%) say that all of the candidates are acceptable to them (18%) or that they are undecided (21%). Eleven percent each say they wouldn't under any circumstances vote for Warren or Biden, 9% would not vote for Williamson, 7% would not vote for Sanders, and 5% would not vote for Gabbard. Less than 5% say they would not vote for Yang (4%), O'Rourke (4%), Steyer (3%), Harris (2%), Castro (2%), Booker (1%), Klobuchar (<1%), Bennet (<1%), Buttigieg (<1%), Sestak (<1%), or Bullock (<1%) under any circumstances.

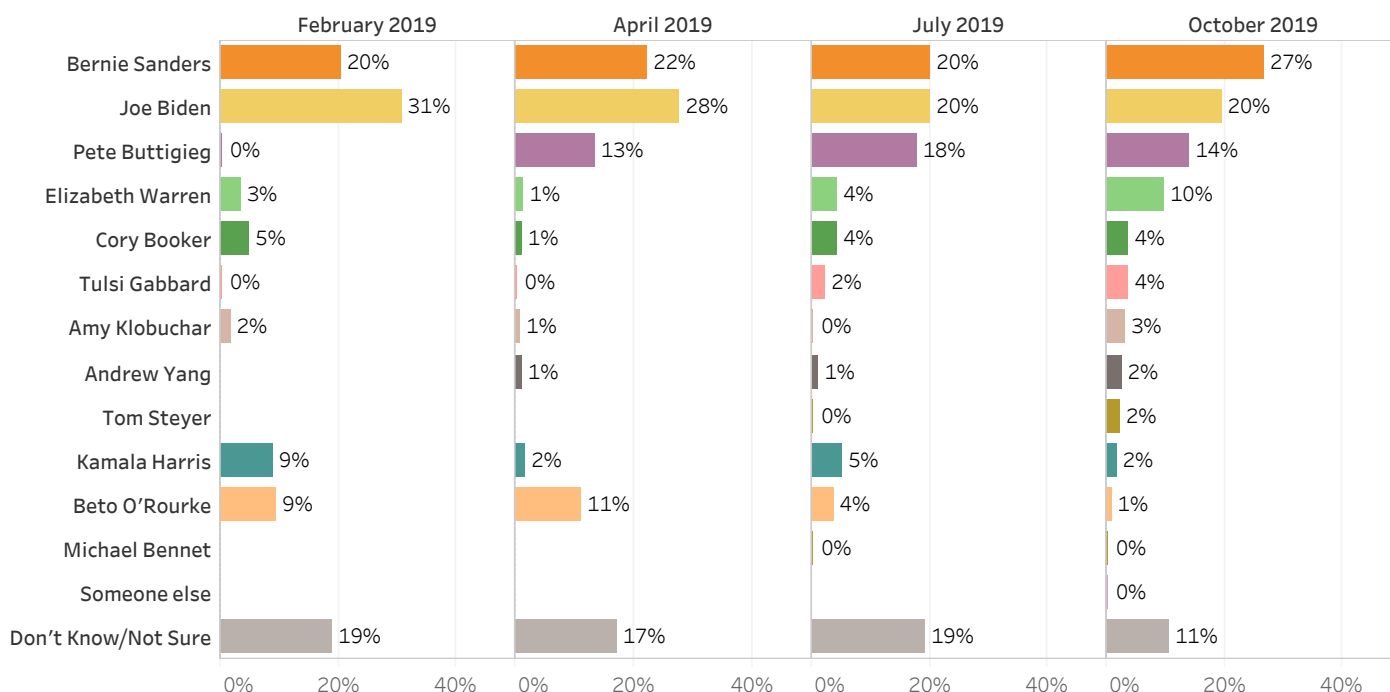

The proportion of likely Democratic voters who say they would not vote for Williamson (9%) has slightly increased since July (4%).

Would Not Vote For Candidate Under Any Circumstances - February 2019 to October 2019

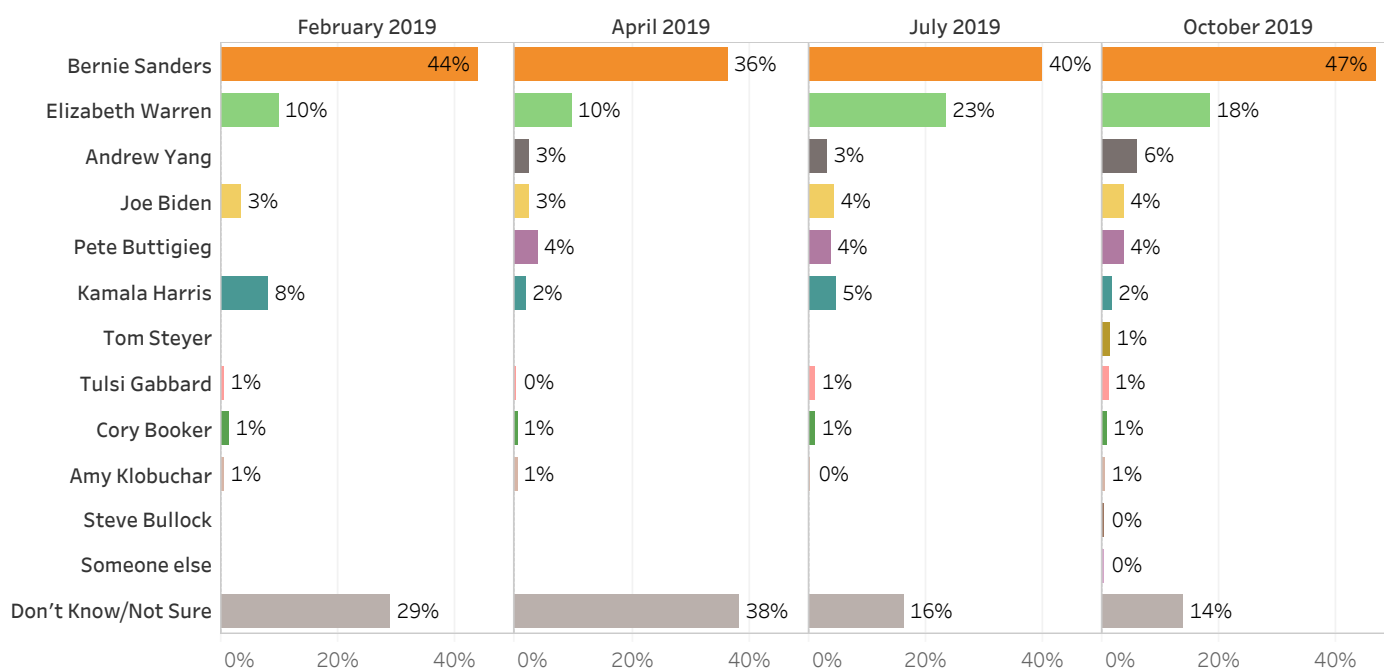

Likely Democratic Primary voters were asked which candidate they find to be the most likeable. Sanders (27%) and Biden (20%) garner nearly half of the responses, followed by Buttigieg (14%) and Warren (10%). Fewer respondents say that Booker (4%), Gabbard (4%), Klobuchar (3%), Yang (2%), Steyer (2%), Harris (2%), O'Rourke (1%), Bennet (<1%), or someone else (<1%) is most likeable, while 11% don't know or are unsure. Since February, Sanders or Biden have consistently been seen by a large portion of likely Democratic voters as the most likeable candidate.

Most Likeable Democratic Candidate - February 2019 to October 2019

Nearly half of likely Democratic primary voters (47%) believe Sanders is the most progressive Democratic candidate, while 18% believe Warren is the most progressive. Fewer likely Democratic voters believe that Yang (6%), Biden (4%), Buttigieg (4%), Harris (2%), Steyer (1%), Gabbard (1%), Booker (1%), Klobuchar (1%), Bullock (<1%), or someone else (<1%) is the most progressive candidate. Fourteen percent don't know or are unsure which candidate is most progressive. Sanders has consistently been seen as the most progressive since February when the question was first asked.

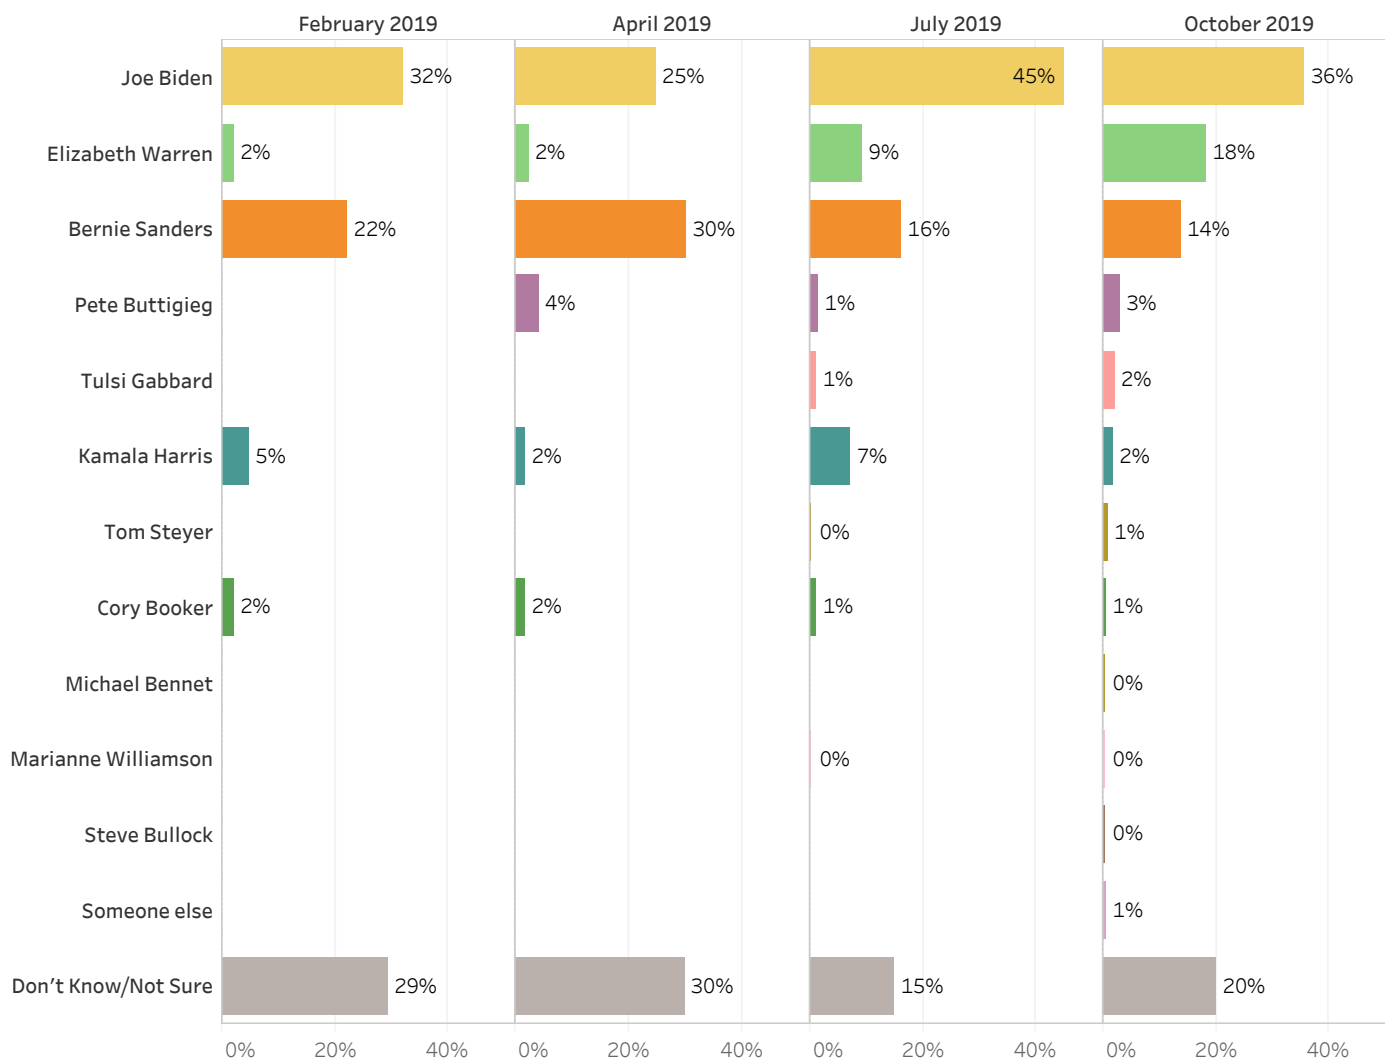

Most Progressive Democratic Candidate - February 2019 to October 2019

Biden continues to be the candidate who likely Democratic primary voters believe has the best chance to win the general election, but his lead on this question has declined since July. Thirty-six percent believe Biden is the candidate with the best chance of winning the general election, 18% believe Warren has the best chance, and 14% believe Sanders has the best chance.

Fewer candidates believe that Buttigieg (3%), Gabbard (2%), Harris (2%), Steyer (1%), Booker (1%), Bennet (<1%), Williamson (<1%), Bullock (<1%), or someone else (1%) has the best chance to win the general election. Twenty percent don't know or are unsure which candidate has the best chance.

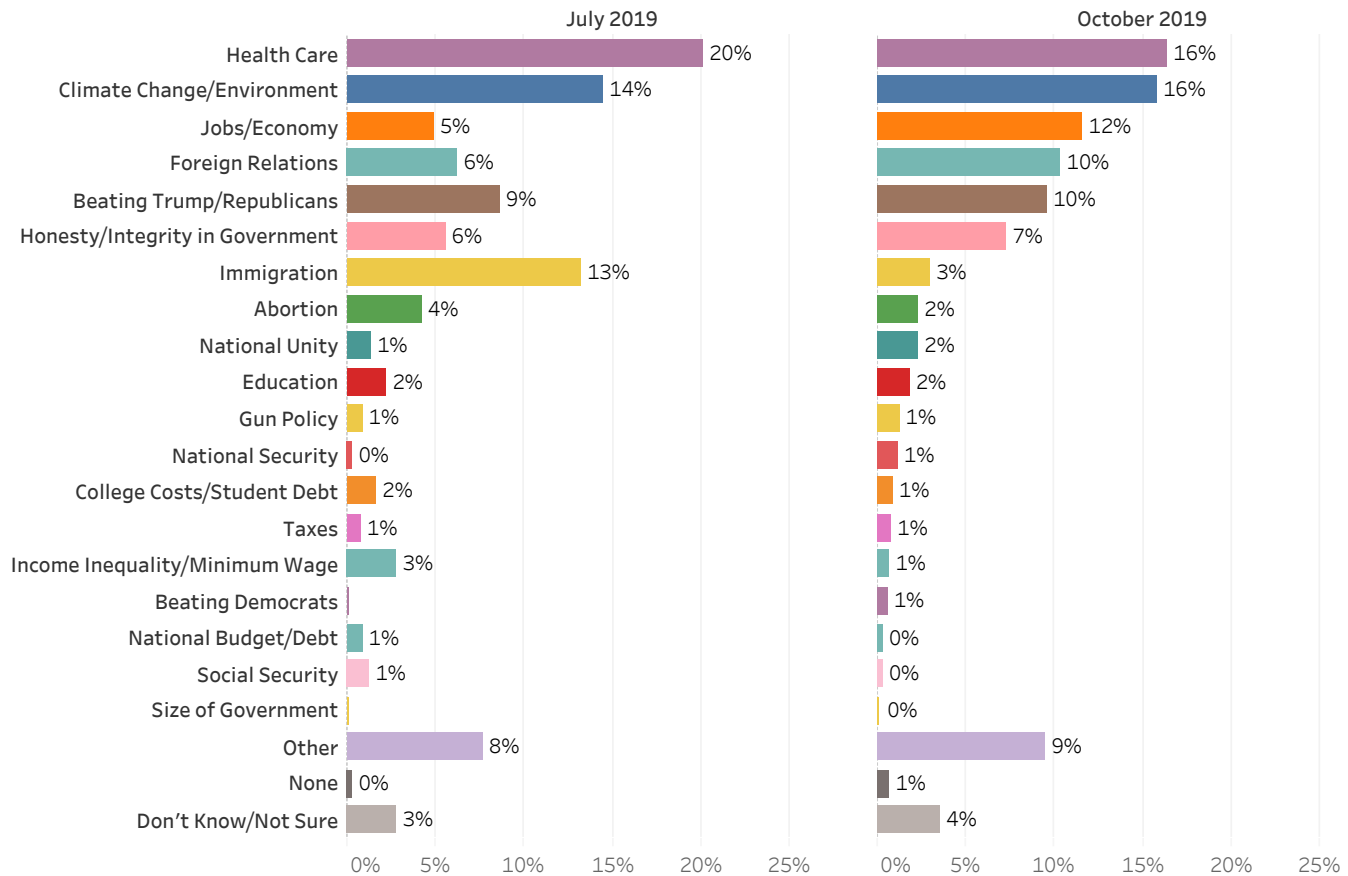

Candidate With Best Chance to Win General Election - February 2019 to October 2019

Most Important Issue to 2020 Primary Vote

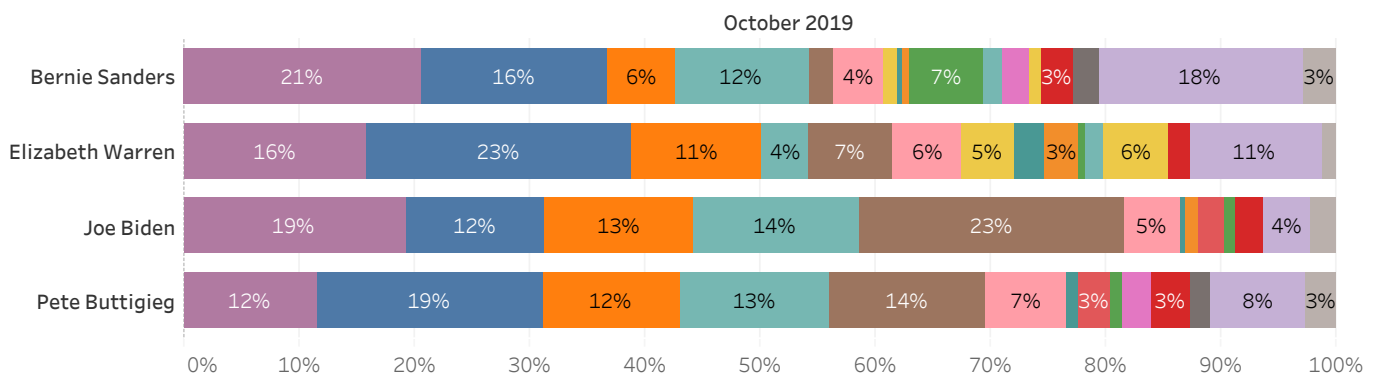

When asked which issue is most important to their primary vote, likely Democratic New Hampshire primary voters most frequently mention health care (16%), climate change or the environment (16%), jobs or the economy (12%), foreign relations (10%), beating Trump or Republicans (10%), and honesty or integrity in government (7%). Fewer likely Democratic voters say that immigration (3%), abortion (2%), national unity (2%), or education (2%) is the most important issue to their vote. One percent each mention gun policy, national security, college costs or student debt, taxes, income inequality or the minimum wage, or beating Democrats as the most important issue to their vote. Less than 1% say that the national budget or debt, Social Security, or the size of government is the most important issue to them, 9% mention something else, 1% do not provide an answer, and 4% don't know or are unsure.

Most Important Issue to 2020 Primary Vote Among Likely Democratic Primary Voters - July 2019 & October 2019

Sanders and Warren supporters are slightly more likely than others to say that health care or climate change/environment is the most important issue to their vote while Biden and Buttigieg supporters are slightly more likely to prioritize foreign relations or beating Trump/Republicans.

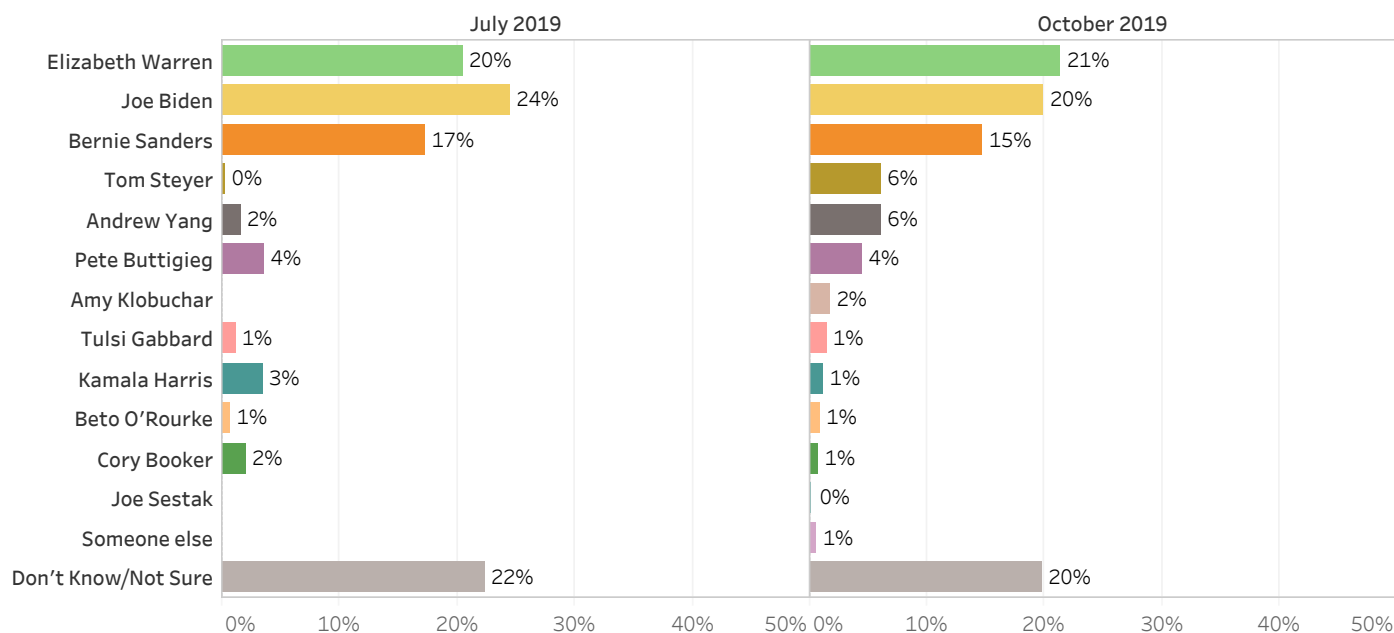

Most Important Issue to 2020 Primary Vote Among Likely Democratic Primary Voters by Preferred Candidate

Likely Democratic primary voters are split on who they think is best able to handle the economy, with 21% preferring Warren and 20% preferring Biden to handle the issue. Fifteen percent believe Sanders would be the best on the economy, 6% each say Steyer or Yang would be best, and 4% would prefer Buttigieg for the task. Fewer respondents say that Klobuchar (2%), Gabbard (1%), Harris (1%), O'Rourke (1%), Booker (1%), Sestak (<1%), or someone else (1%) would be best able to handle the economy. Twenty percent don't know or are unsure who would be best suited to handle the economy.

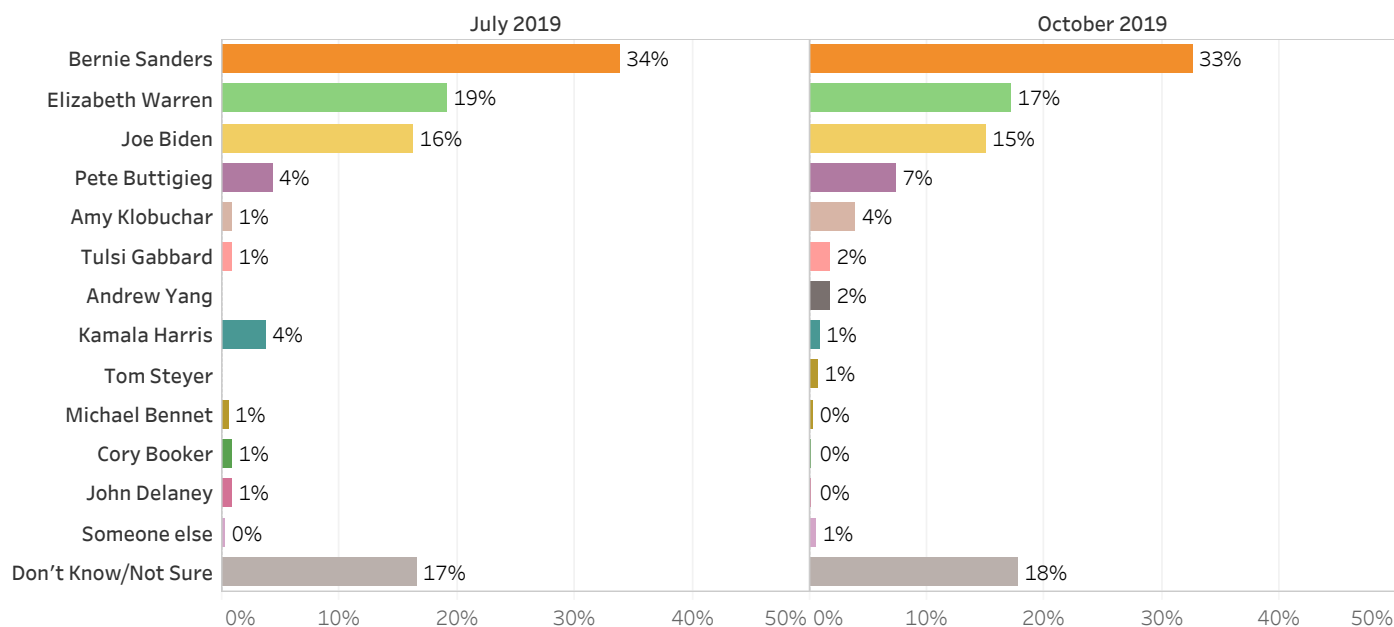

Responses to this question are largely similar to those provided in July. The proportion of respondents who would prefer Steyer or Yang to handle the economy has slightly increased since that time.

Candidate Best Able to Handle the Economy - July 2019 & October 2019

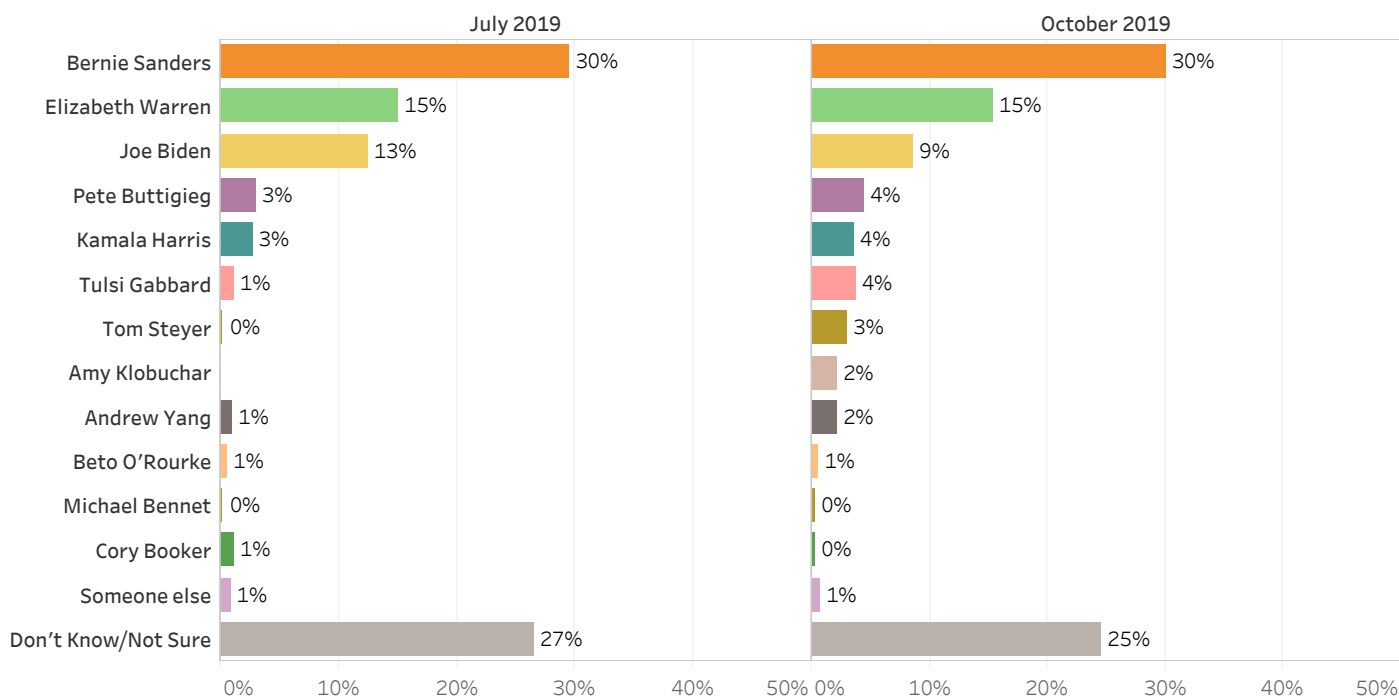

One-third of likely Democratic primary voters (33%) believe Sanders would be best able to handle health care, 17% believe Warren would best, 15% say Biden would be best able to handle it, and 7% would prefer Buttigieg for the task. Fewer believe that Klobuchar (4%), Gabbard (2%), Yang (2%), Harris (1%), Steyer (1%), Bennet (<1%), Booker (<1%), Delaney (<1%), or someone else (1%) would be best able to handle health care. Eighteen percent don't know or are unsure who would be best suited to handle health care. Responses to this question are quite similar to those provided in July.

Candidate Best Able to Handle Health Care - July 2019 & October 2019

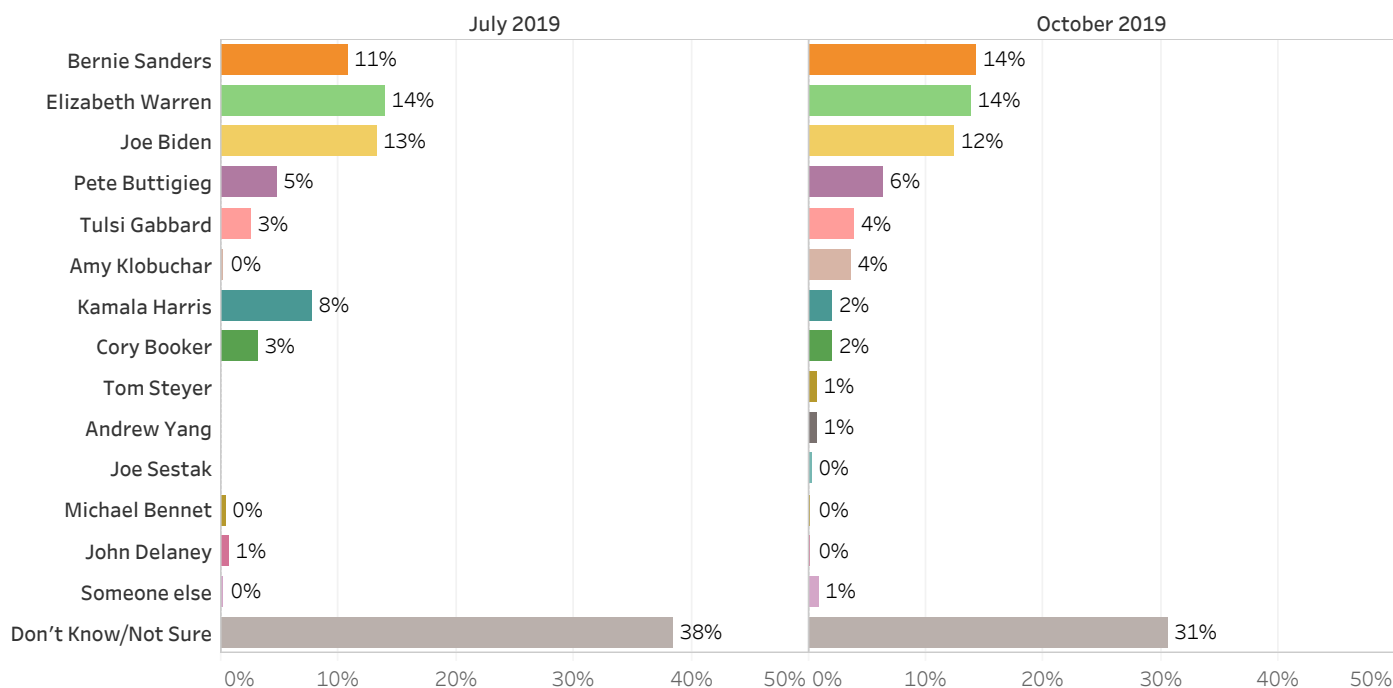

Three in ten likely Democratic primary voters (30%) believe Sanders would be best able to handle the climate crisis, while 15% believe Warren would be best and 9% believe Biden would be best on the climate. Fewer respondents say that Buttigieg (4%), Harris (4%), Gabbard (4%), Steyer (3%), Klobuchar (2%), Yang (2%), O'Rourke (1%), Bennet (<1%), Booker (<1%), or someone else (1%) would be best on the climate crisis while 25% don't know or are unsure. Responses to this question are quite similar to those provided in July.

Candidate Best Able to Handle the Climate Crisis - July 2019 & October 2019

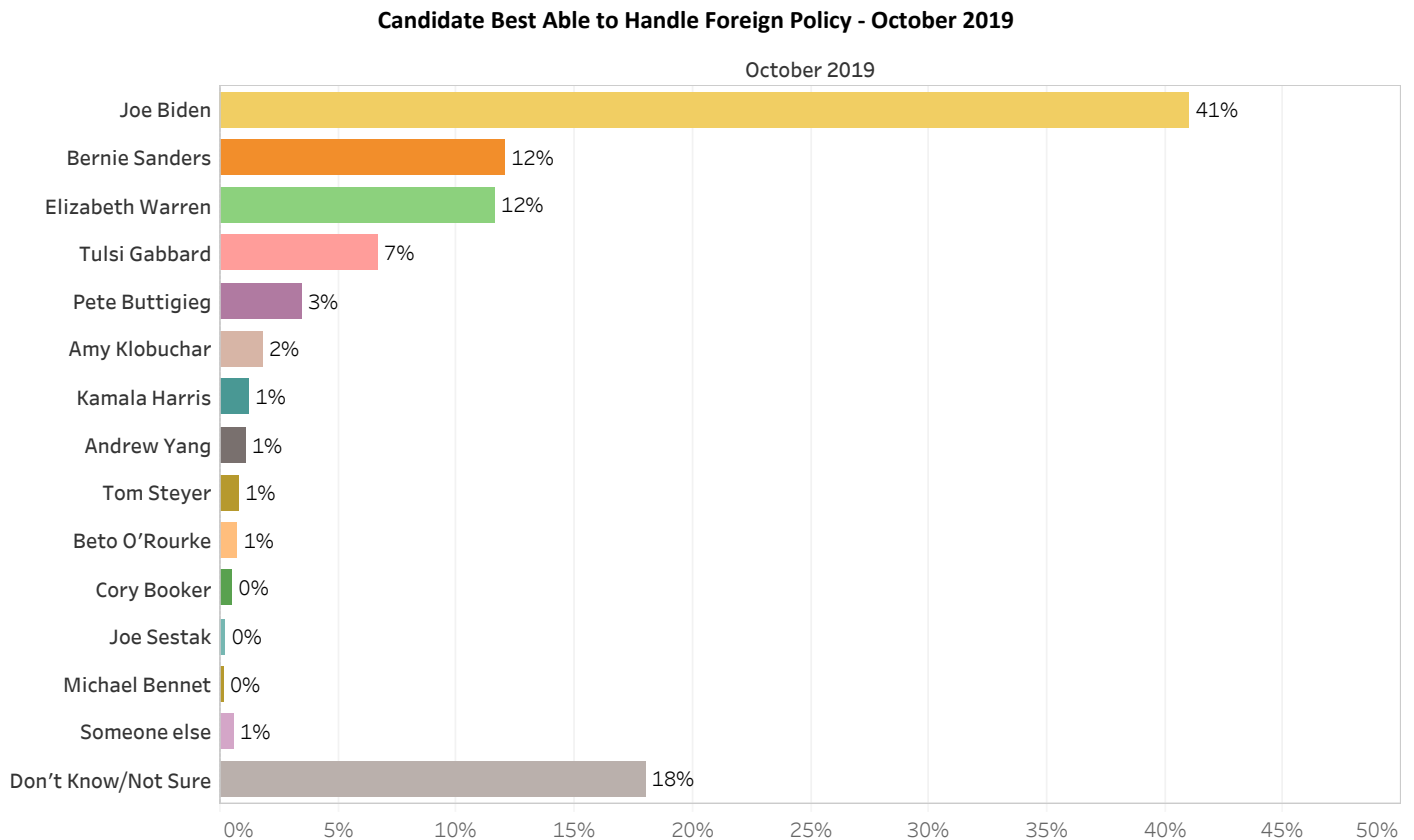

Similarly to the results in July, there is no consensus among likely Democratic primary voters on which candidate would be best able to handle gun policy: 14% each believe Sanders or Warren would be best on this issue while 12% say Biden would be best. Six percent would prefer Buttigieg for gun policy, 4% each say that Gabbard or Klobuchar would be best, 2% each would prefer Harris or Booker, 1% each would prefer Steyer or Yang, less than 1% would prefer Sestak, Bennet, or Delaney, and 1% would prefer someone else to handle gun policy. Thirty-one percent don't know or are unsure who would best to handle gun policy.

Candidate Best Able to Handle Gun Policy - July 2019 & October 2019

Forty-one percent of likely Democratic primary voters believe Biden would be best able to handle foreign policy, 12% each believe Sanders or Warren would be best, 7% believe Gabbard would be best, and 3% believe Buttigieg would be best for foreign policy. Fewer respondents believe Klobuchar (2%), Harris (1%), Yang (1%), Steyer (1%), O'Rourke (1%), Booker (<1%), Sestak (<1%), Bennet (<1%), or someone else (1%) would be best on foreign policy, while 18% don't know or are unsure.

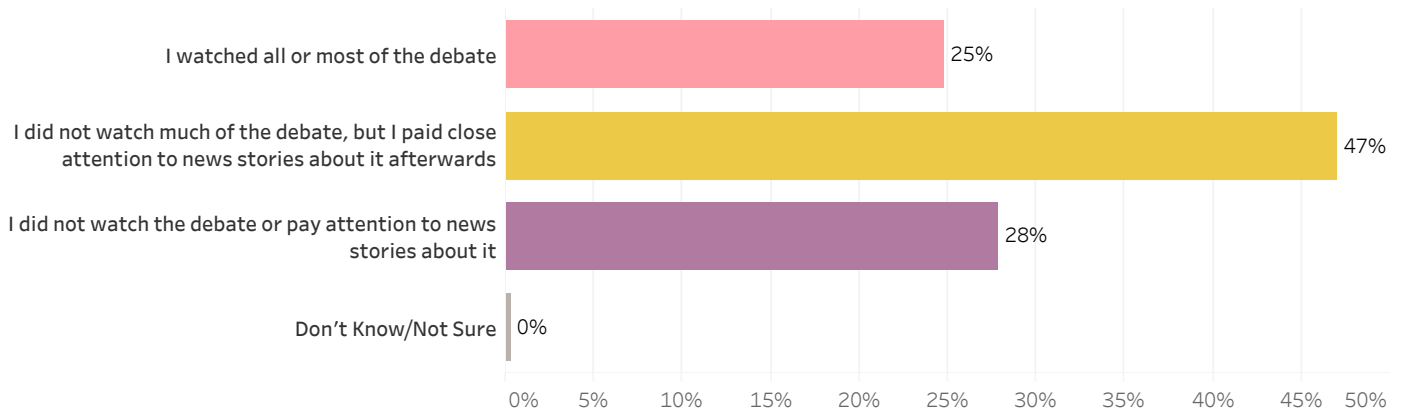

October Democratic Debate

Twelve members of the Democratic primary field participated in a debate hosted by CNN and the New York Times on October 15th. A quarter of likely New Hampshire Democratic primary voters (25%) say that they watched all or most of the debate while 47% say they did not watch much of the debate, but they paid close attention to news stories about it afterwards. Twenty-eight percent say that they did not watch the debate or pay attention to news stories about it. These responses are broadly similar to those provided regarding the June Democratic debates.

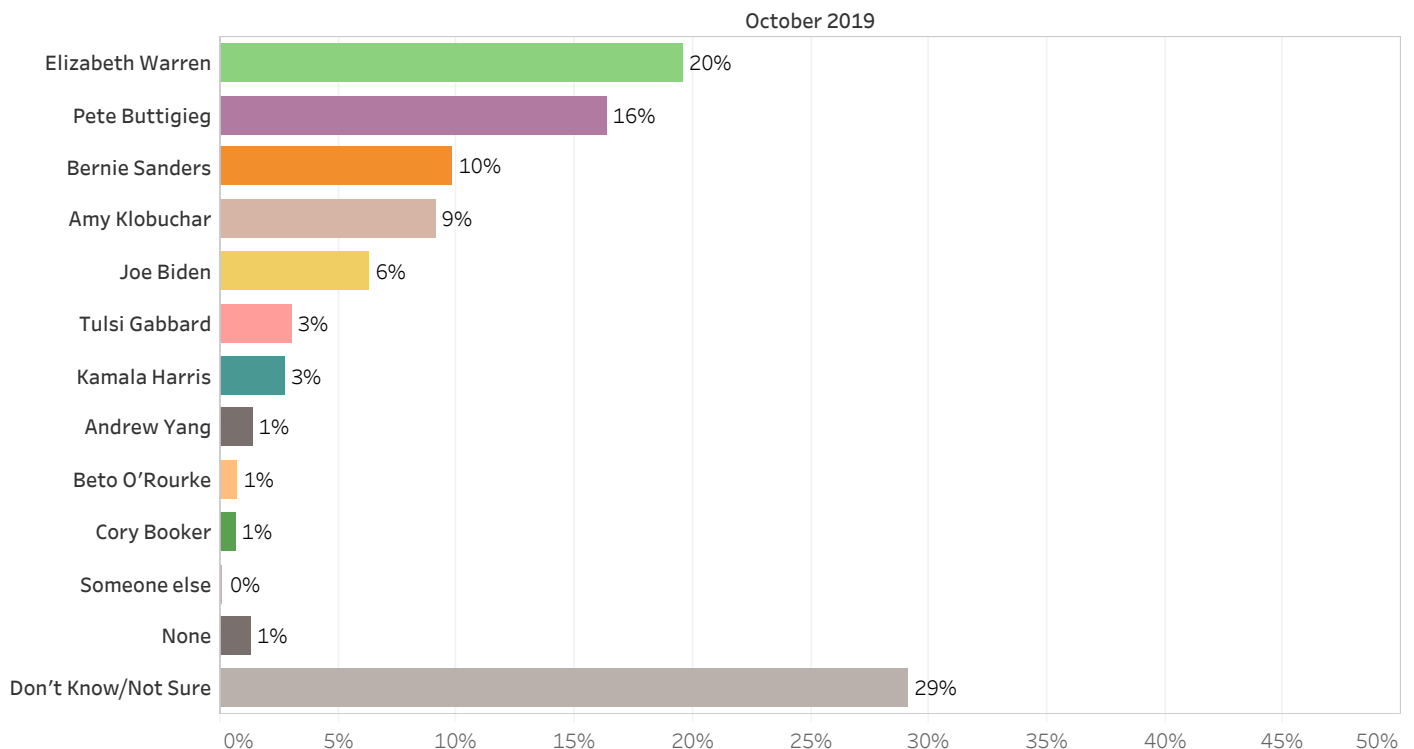

Among likely Democratic primary voters, those aged 65 and older and those who attend religious services once or twice a month are more likely than others to say they watched all or most of the debate.

Viewing of October Debate

Among those who watched all or most of the debate or paid close attention to news stories about it afterwards (N=412), 20% believe that Warren had the best performance in the debate while 16% say Buttigieg had the best performance. Ten percent say that Sanders had the best performance, 9% say Klobuchar was best, and 6% say Biden had the best performance. Fewer respondents say that Gabbard (3%), Harris (3%), Yang (1%), O'Rourke (1%), Booker (1%), or someone else (<1%) had the best debate performance, while 29% don't know or are unsure.

Best Performance in October Debate

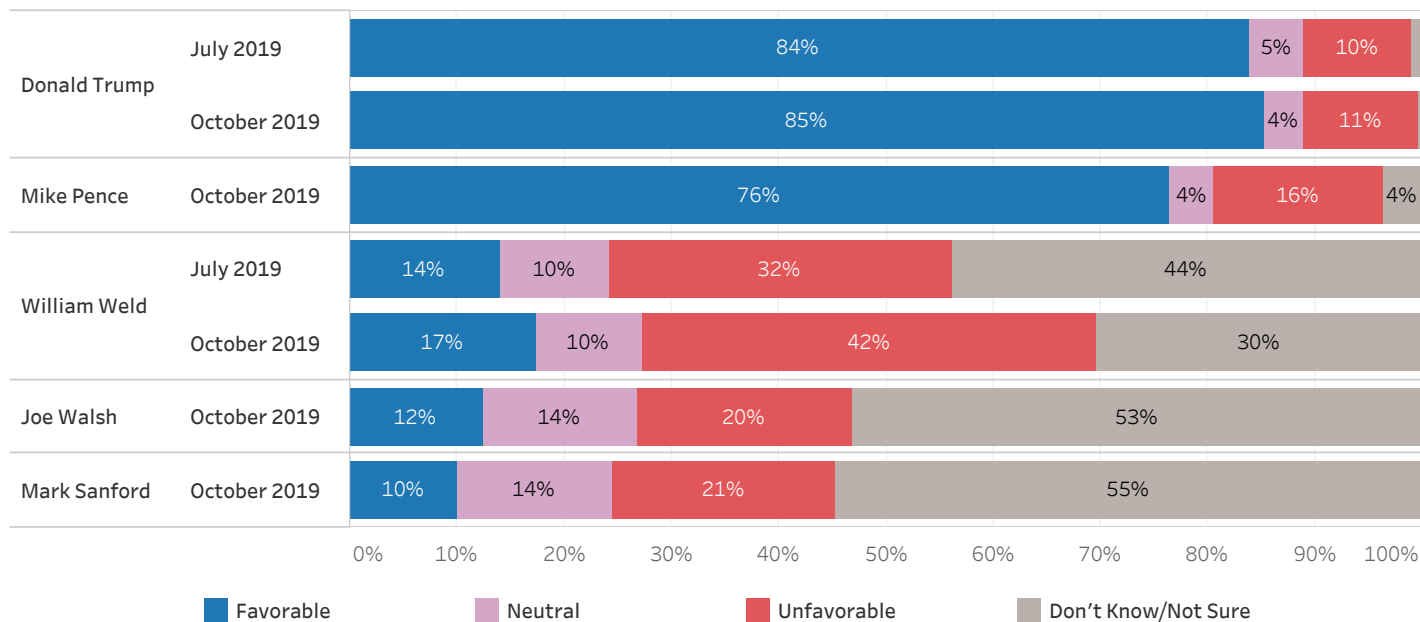

2020 Republican Primary

Likely Republican New Hampshire primary voters are overwhelmingly positive in their overall opinion of Donald Trump: 85% have a favorable opinion, 4% are neutral, 11% have an unfavorable opinion, and less than 1% don't know or have never heard of him. Trump's favorability among likely Republican voters is unchanged since July. The vast majority of Republicans (76%) also have a favorable opinion of Vice President Mike Pence; 4% are neutral on Pence, 16% have an unfavorable opinion of him, and 4% don't know or have never heard of him.

Three Republican challengers, former Massachusetts Governor William Weld, former Illinois Congressman Joe Walsh, and former South Carolina Congressman Mark Sanford, are largely unknown by Republican primary voters. Seventeen percent have a favorable opinion of Weld, 10% are neutral, 42% have a unfavorable opinion, and 30% don't know or are unsure. Weld is slightly less popular among likely Republican voters (-25% net favorability rating) than in July (-18%). Twelve percent of likely Republican voters have a favorable opinion of Walsh, 14% are neutral, 20% have an unfavorable opinion, and 53% don't know or are unsure. Ten percent have a favorable opinion of Sanford, 14% are neutral, 21% have an unfavorable opinion, and 55% don't know or are unsure.

Republican Candidates Favorability - July 2019 & October 2019

Among likely Republican New Hampshire primary voters, self-described conservatives are more likely than others to have a favorable opinion of Trump, while those who did not vote in 2016, college graduates, and self-described moderates are less likely to have a favorable opinion of him.

Among likely Republican New Hampshire primary voters, self-described conservatives and those aged 65 and older are more likely than others to have a favorable opinion of Pence, while those who did not vote in 2016, those aged 18 to 34, and self-described moderates are less likely to have a favorable opinion of him.

Likely Republican New Hampshire primary voters who have completed postgraduate work are more likely than others to have a favorable opinion of Weld.

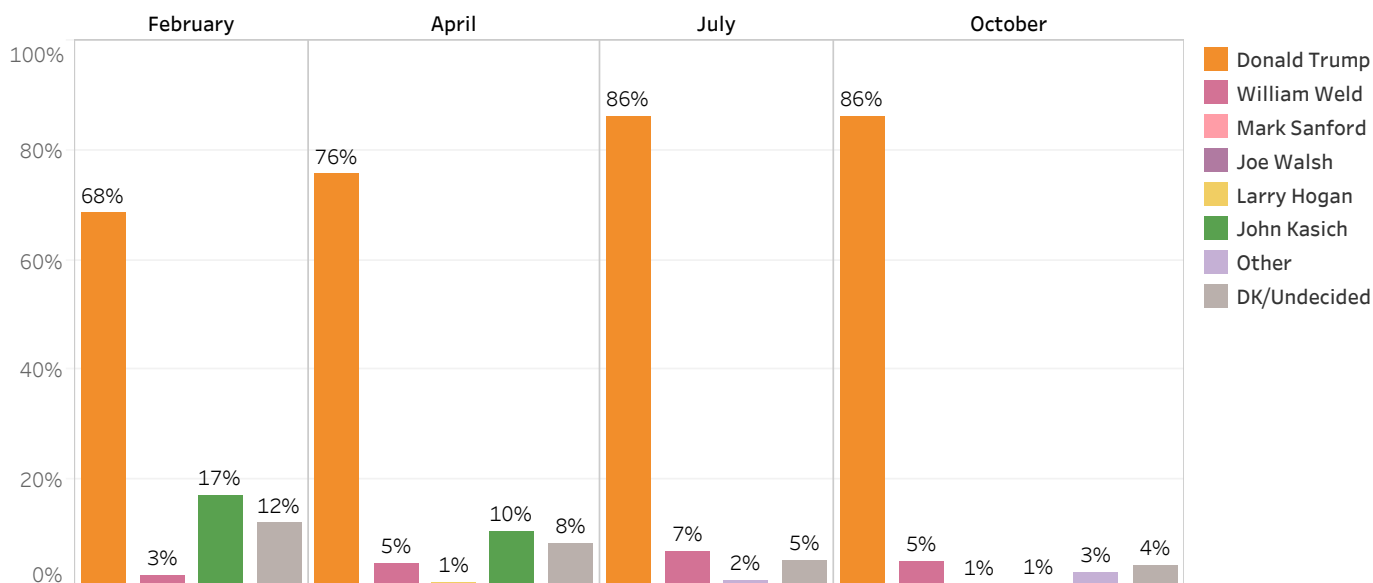

Likely Republican New Hampshire primary voters aged 18 to 34 are more likely than others to have a favorable opinion of Walsh.

There remains little support for Republican primary challengers to Trump. The vast majority of Republican primary voters (86%) say they would vote for Donald Trump if the primary were held today, 5% would support Weld, and 1% each would support Sanford or Walsh. Three percent say they would support another candidate while 4% don't know or are undecided.

The proportion of respondents who say they would vote for Trump (86%) is unchanged since July (86%) while support for Weld has also remained largely unchanged. Since July, Sanford and Walsh have declared their candidacies for the Republican nomination but each garner the support of only 1% of likely Republican voters. Former Ohio Governor John Kasich and Maryland Governor Larry Hogan, who were included in earlier iterations of this question, have each since announced that they will not enter the 2020 Republican primary.

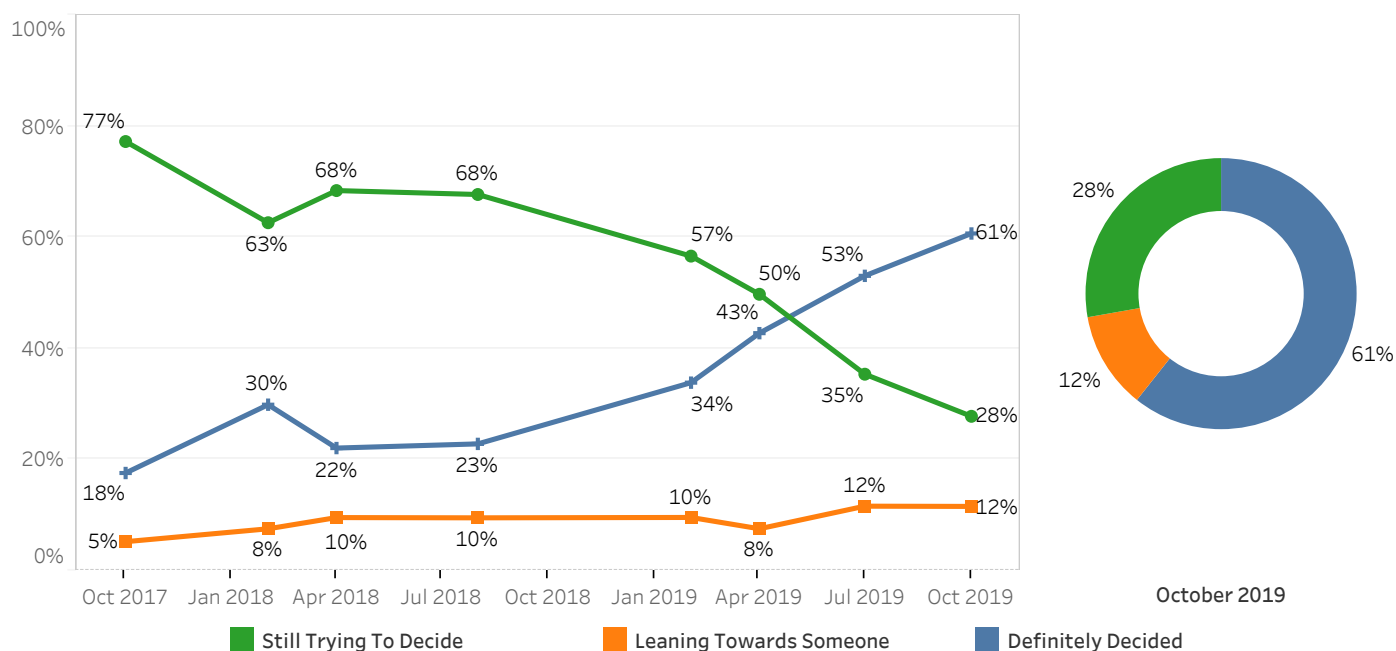

Among likely Republican primary voters, college graduates and those who did not vote in 2016 are less likely than others to say they would vote for Trump if the primary were held today.

Preferred Republican 2020 Presidential Nomination Candidate - February 2017 to October 2019

Six in ten likely Republican New Hampshire primary voters (61%) have definitely decided whom they will support in the 2020 Republican Presidential Primary. Twelve percent are leaning toward someone while 28% are still trying to decide. Since February, the proportion of respondents who say they have definitely decided has nearly doubled.

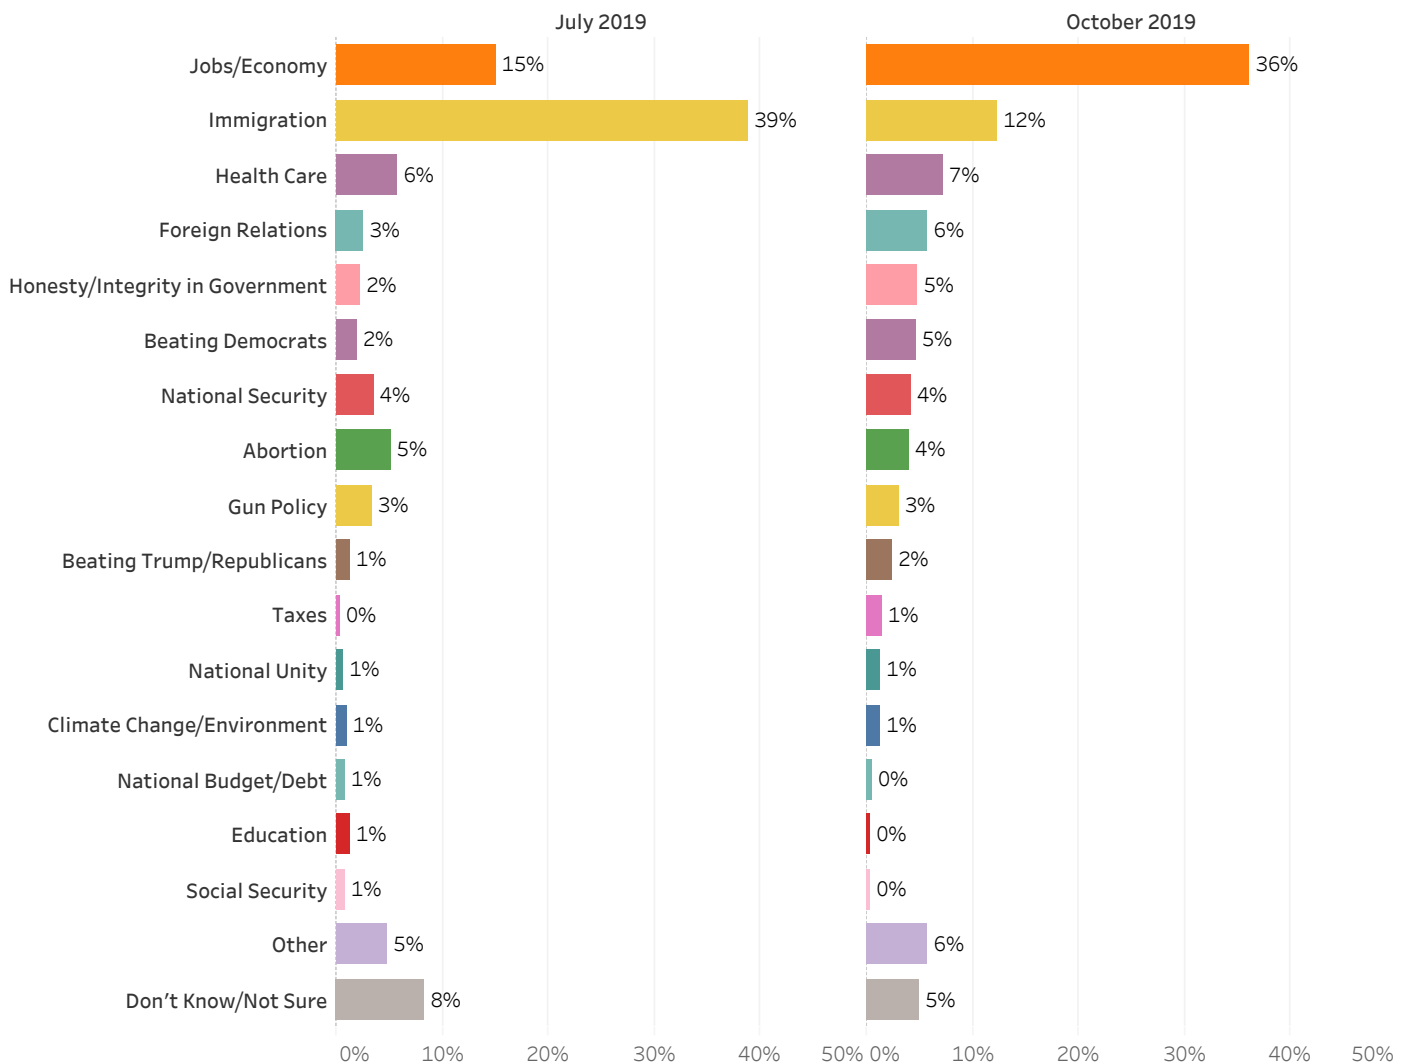

Definitely Decided on Candidate - Republican Primary Voters - October 2017 to October 2019

Most Important Issue to 2020 Primary Vote Among Likely Republican Primary Voters

CNN 2020 New Hampshire Primary Poll

These findings are based on the latest CNN 2020 New Hampshire Primary Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center. One thousand and two hundred sixty-six (1,266) randomly selected New Hampshire adults were interviewed in English by landline and cellular telephone between October 21 and October 27, 2019. The margin of sampling error for the survey is +/- 2.8 percent. Included in the sample were 461 likely 2020 Republican Primary voters (margin of sampling error +/- 4.6 percent) and 574 likely 2020 Democratic Primary voters (margin of sampling error +/- 4.1 percent). Trend points prior to July 2019 reflect results from the Granite State Poll, conducted by the University of New Hampshire Survey Center.

The random sample used in the CNN 2020 New Hampshire Primary Poll was purchased from Scientific Telephone Samples (STS), Rancho Santo Margarita, CA. STS screens each selected telephone number to eliminate non-working numbers, disconnected numbers, and business numbers to improve the efficiency of the sample, reducing the amount of time interviewers spend calling non-usable numbers. When a landline number is reached, the interviewer randomly selects a member of the household by asking to speak with the adult currently living in the household who has had the most recent birthday. This selection process ensures that every adult (18 years of age or older) in the household has an equal chance of being included in the survey.

The data have been weighted to adjust for numbers of adults and telephone lines within households. Additionally, data were weighted by respondent sex, age, education, and region of the state to targets from the most recent American Community Survey (ACS) conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau. In addition to potential sampling error, all surveys have other potential sources of non-sampling error including question order effects, question wording effects, and non-response. Due to rounding, percentages may not sum to 100%. The number of respondents in each demographic below may not equal the number reported in cross-tabulation tables as some respondents choose not to answer some questions.
